NORWAY AND VICINITY.
Clerks' Ball Next Tuesday.

The twelfth annual ball to be given by the Norway Clerks' Association on next Tuesday evening is the event which dancing people of this vicinity are impatiently awaiting, certain of the good time to be had at this, the most elaborate event of the season. Both floor tickets and the gallery seats are meeting with rapid sale, though there is room for more both in the galleries and on the floor.

The concert by Stearns' orchestra will be a well chosen selection of orchestral music.

A number from Auburn who have attended in other years are planning to attend and bring their friends with them, and we hear the same from other places along the Grand Trunk railway.

Improving the Wayside.
Adelaide Shattuck is to have some landscape gardening done on the roadside of the Clark farm at Norway Lake. This is now a very attractive place, and without doubt a little labor
by the roadside will make it better.

Every farmer or owner of land by the roadside in Norway should study to improve it. The long winter evenings are just the time to think out a plan to make the road beside the land beautiful,—to trim out the bushes and trim up the shade trees,—and these winter days
when there is not much work rushing,
and while there is much snow and doing such work to put these plans into practice. He who plants a shade tree
by the roadside is a public benefactor.
Life is equally true of the one who makes a shade tree out of an unsightly
bush.

Norway's Feed Bog.
The out of town papers have again discovered "Norway's feed bog." Some of our villagers, though they have seen it all their lives, may not know where the depot is situated. It is out back of the depot towards the Rumford road.
From time to time the value of the peat that might be gotten from this meadow have been circulated, but as yet
we have never heard of its being used for fuel.

Winter Schools.
The present winter term of schools
will be eleven weeks in length in the village and ten weeks in rural schools.

Ralph I. Trask has so far recovered from his recent severe cold and grip as to be on the street. He has been housed some three weeks.

Bertha Kavanagh is the operator at the Oxford Center of the Eastern Tel-
phone Co. She has been at the Norway
Central office for some weeks past.

E. S. Cotton exchanged pulpits with
Rev. C. W. Chesboro, of South Paris,
Sunday morning. Mr. Chesboro preached most excellent and searching sermon on Gideon and his band of three hundred men.

Irving Frost, the fox hunter, is authority for a grasshopper story. The hopper was seen near Cobble Hill, Jan. 29th.
It was alive and sprightly and actually hopped like as they do in July and August. It was examined by Irving and J.
Freeland Bolster and another gentleman.
All three bear willing testimony to the fact that it was a grasshopper and was alive. No fox, however, was got on that day, only this out of season hopper rewarded their efforts. We tell it as it was told.

Mrs. Potter, who has been very ill is slowly recovering.

Mr. Moser and wife, of Hebron, have been in town this week on business.

Lee W. Templeton, of Guilford, is to try reporting in the ADVERTISER office.

Freeland Howe, Jr. was here Sunday, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Freeland Howe.

Merton Tower had a party of six boys
about his age on the evening of his 11th birthday, Monday.

W. L. Merrill is singing tenor in the church at South Paris.

H. B. Foster and Lee Smith were both

NUMBER 5.
FEBRUARY 2, 1906, NORWAY, MAINE.

Passed to His Reward.

Rev. Jabez E. Budden died at his residence on Hazen street last Monday forenoon. The end was not unexpected as he had been gradually growing weaker day by day. He suffered a paralytic shock last April and has been unable to move about unaided since. He has been tenderly cared for by his wife and Aaron Babbs. He has been able to be wheeled about the streets on pleasant days.

Mr. Budden was born in Swansea, England, July 14, 1832, and came to this country when 9 years old and made his home in Portland. At the age of 14 he went with Wm. C. Beckett of that city to learn the trade of tailor. He served seven years as an apprentice with Mr.
Beckett.

He prepared himself for the ministry while working at his trade and at the age of 34 he was admitted to the Methodist Conference as a minister of the Gospel. He was located with numerous churches and did his work well and faithfully. His last pastoral charge was at North Norway, and owing to ill health
he was compelled to give up church work.

Some 15 or 16 years ago he moved into the village and began work at his trade.
He did a successful business in a small way and made many friends. In the day of May, 1894, he was burned out, losing as many others did all his household effects. He commenced working for F.
H. Noyes Co. as tailor the January before, which position he held up to the time of the shock last April. For a number of years he did all his cutting but as he advanced in years and business increased another tailor was added but Mr. Budden was retained and had plenty of work and was doing well in his declining years and up to the hour he was compelled to give up work from the effects of the shock.

He was a member of Oxford Lodge,
F. & A. M., and Norway Lodge, I. O.
O. F. Both of these orders have rendered much assistance during his long sickness. For two years he has been Grand Chaplain of the Grand Chapter of Maine, and for many years he has served as chaplain of the two orders.

Rev. J. E. Budden joined the Maine
Conference in 1867 and served the following charges: Cape Porpoise, West
Newfield, Goodwin's Mills, Scarborough,
Bowery Beach, Harswell, Kezar Falls,
Raymond, North Windham, Gray, North Norway and Mason. Since 1892 he has been located at Norway, not able to serve on a charge but a great inspiration to the church and town. The 25th of last March while at a prayer meeting he was stricken with a shock from which he never recovered. Before the shock he some, and gave every evidence of his true Christian life, patient, yet happy, and waiting to go home. He died as he lived a Christian.

He is survived by a widow. They have no children. The only relative is a sister, Mrs. Beals, who lives in Portland.

The funeral was under the auspices of the Masons and was from the Methodist church, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. C.
A. Brooks officiating as pastor. Burial was made in Pine Grove cemetery, where the deceased had a good lot on which he had thoughtfully had erected headstones for both himself and wife bearing the inscription, expecting date of death.

Norway Lodge, F. O. O. F., and Mt.
Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 58, attended
the funeral.

Spark from Pailor Match Set Fire to the Bed Clothes.

The fortunate awakening of Dr. Harry Chase, the dentist, at his home in Haverhill, Mass., undoubtedly saved the life of his mother, Mrs. Frances Chase, who is suffering from a severe illness,
and his home from destruction. When Dr. Chase awoke he found his room filled with smoke and he hastily started an investigation. Finding no fire in his room, he went to the chamber occupied by his mother and there found the bed in flames and Mrs. Chase standing in the middle of the room in a bewildered state. Quick action in stripping the bed of its burning coverings undoubtedly saved the house from destruction.

The cause of the fire was the snapping of a pailor match. Mrs. Chase was arisen and in attempting to light the gas had scratched a match, a part of which snapped over to the bed and set fire to the top spread. Mrs. Chase quickly noticed the fire and pulled the spread from the bed and extinguished
the fire, but she failed to notice that the flames had eaten their way to the comforter and blankets. The room quickly filled with smoke which poured into the other rooms in the house. In a few seconds more time the mattress would have been in flames, and owing to Mrs.
Chase's condition she would have been unable to summon aid.

Mrs. Otho Bean of Cape Elizabeth is very sick with heart trouble. At one time last week it was feared she might not recover.

The brown tailed moths in the little sawed jar at the Advertiser office have come out of their cocoons and they are right smart and lively.

Mrs. E. B. Swan of Lynn, Mass., is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bacon, in honor of her father's 72nd birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Hills gave a dinner party, Thursday evening, to Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred
Cummings and Dr. and Mrs. Harry Jones.

Sunday was a bad day for the trolley
wire. It broke near the Beal's Hotel,
the Advertiser Office and over to South Paris. It kept the crew busy putting in new wire.

Carl P. Mixer is home from Portland on a visit. He is working there for the General Electric Co., and tells us he has got to go to the hospital to be operated on for appendicitis.

Arthur B. Hart, of East Gloucester, Mass., came to Norway, Monday. He thinks he will stay with us a while and learn the printing business, if he finds it to his liking after a trial.

Kora Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Maine, will have their annual Ladies' Night at their headquarters at Lewiston, Friday evening, Feb. 9. As many of the Norway Masons are members, doubtless more or less of the number will attend.

Peddler's Parade.

The baked bean and salad supper at the vestry of the Congregational church,
Wednesday evening was well attended.
The entertainment was novel as the following program of the "Peddler's Parade" will show:

Armstrong Peddler.....George Andrews
Fortune teller.....Bessie Haggett

It was a decided success from start to finish. The supper was served in the dining room from 6:45 to 8 o'clock.
The dining room was tastefully decorated with red and green crepe. The entertainment was given a most unique and most unique and amusing entertainment known as the "Peddler's Parade." This parade was composed of twenty-five men, women and children, representing lemonade vender, cake pie, doughnut,
cream puff, and ice cream seller, jew and Armenian peddlers, and in fact nearly every kind of peddler or street vender represented, each carrying a supply of his or her goods, and dressed in costumes peculiar to their line of business.
The parade entered the vestry and marched up the center to face the audience amid shouts of laughter which were continued throughout the entertainment.

Each vender in his or her turn made known their business with amusing remarks or songs. After all had explained their business they marched to the front of the vestry and offered their goods for sale.

Their supply of ice cream, lemonade,
cakes, pies, doughnuts etc., were soon sold, and one of the most unique and successful church entertainments of the season was over.

The receipts of the evening were over thirty dollars.

Calico Ball.
St. Valentines day the ladies of the Veranda club give a calico ball at the Norway Opera House. There is still plenty of time for the ladies to get their calico costumes ready for this occasion.
Before the ball there will be an entertainment from 8 to 9 o'clock, consisting of an original farce, "Mrs. Snuggles Pink Tea," by F. J. McCarthy. There will also be specialties by Walter S.
Chandler and F. J. McCarthy.

Frank P. Kimball, who works at A. L.
Cook's barber shop, is confined to the house with a severe cold.

This Thursday afternoon the Barton
club meets at Mrs. H. J. Bangs'. Current events will be the topic considered.
The entertainment at Masons' hall
last night, Thursday, will be a usual
Ladies' night, in the nature of a surprise to the ladies.

It is understood that A. P. Bassett is to build a large skating rink at Pine Tree Park, and fit up the park as a place for amusements and recreations.

tended the Barnard's performance at Portland, were Mr. and Mrs. Edna Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cum-

While crossing the street, last Satur-

broken, only a bruise on her forehead.
Too much care cannot be exercised by

VOLUME XXXVII

What Shall We Do? You Say!

It's the road question. Roads, roads, roads and poor ones too. They are poor and the people who make them are also poor or think they are. Is it because no one knows how to make roads or is it that we have no suitable material with which to make roads. Maybe it's some of both. My way of thinking it's more of the former. The lack of knowledge.
How is that knowledge to be had? It can be had just the same as anything else if we go after it. Will you say yes? Where can it be found? You can find it but who, among the one thousand voters will prepare himself
more than likely you wouldn't allow him to build roads on his plan or to use the knowledge he has gained.

The Lake road and the village streets are shocking. That is their condition for 5 days out of 7 during the summer months.

What are we to do about it? Grumble and find fault and do nothing. This we have been doing for 25 years. Why not do something?

The Grand road commissioners say that they believe that every town should have a ten-ton 2-cylinder steam road roller to run over its gravel or earth roads for nothing else. The mistake they have made is that it had not purchased a steam roller. You can't afford to make roads, even gravel roads without using a steam roller. The roads will sustain the traffic without cutting up.

Speak No Evil.
Of others I would not speak ill, dear heart, But I must not be silent when I hear thee say, Of the evil things that thou art doing, heart, Of the evil things that thou art doing, heart, Of the evil things that thou art doing, heart, Oh, our robes are not spotted with stains, dear heart, The darkest and worst we have hid, Our hearts are not guileless of pains, dear heart, When we peep beneath Memory's lid, In the dark there are crooked lanes, dear heart, And remembrance holds heavy chains, dear heart, Of which we speak ill of the dead, dear heart, Of which we speak ill of the dead, dear heart, Of which we speak ill of the dead, dear heart, We lay them there in their dead, dear heart, We lay them there in their dead, dear heart, We lay them there in their dead, dear heart, What might they say about you? In their dark they lay in their dead, dear heart, With all their memories they're there, Why not leave all the evil unsaid, dear heart, As 'ye would it were unsaid, dear heart, COBA M. W. Sympathy for Good Will Farm.
Did the thought ever occur to you, that a cruel, selfish herd of swine the human race really is, notwithstanding its boasted culture and refinement, and long centuries of civilization?

"Good Will Farm" the article entitled of January 19th? The farm is described as "an institution for rescue of needy and imperiled children." Needs! For food and shelter, while our noble race raises its head, and looks upon the paints, powders, confections, perfumes and thousands of needless or pernicious articles demanded by our culture and refinement, or debauchery and vice. "Imperiled" by contact with their natural protectors whose influence leads only to misery and vice.

The doves in our village streets will unite in feeding and caring for the young of their species that have been accidentally thrown on the world. The mocking birds of the South will do the same. No institutions needed for the protection of their young! However they were not endowed with reason, and are only following the blind promptings of instinct given them by the Creator.

But let us turn to the fact remains that there are countless ill begotten, God forsaken waifs who are thankful for the shelter and support which even an institution affords, and which resembles the home as much as a rockpile resembles a father's home, since a few noble souls are willing to give time and labor for the rescue and cleansing of the oftentimes unsavory atoms of humanity, then what excuse remains for us, dear kind, generous, liberal, charitable, and good, to stand by and see a failure to support the Home that others have built.

Of course we cannot look for aid from the very rich. They are too busy scattering libraries, endowing colleges, etc., to find time to be really useful. Time to help less than poverty grim and terrible, which leads to crime. Time to rescue these waifs from the awful realms where incapacity leads to idleness, to hunger, to crime, all blending with drunkenness and obscenity in a futile effort to escape the misery that seems to be their natural heritage. Too busy with yacht racing, auto races, fast horses, faster women and so on, to find time to alleviate the condition of these dregs of society, or to aid them in escaping a hell in this life, and we don't know what in the life to come.

Did you ever practice self denial in the interests of Charity? It's very painful, and it multiplies yourself a long time afterwards, but you have a consolation of knowing that you have accomplished what very few people ever try.

If those men who are so strenuously pursuing the "tobacco habit," could be persuaded to put one cigar each day (or week) and the money to be saved, have cost during the year could be donated to the Farm, the poor boys thereon would not be compelled to harvest so many potatoes, (200 bushels,) during the coming year besides attending to various other duties and studies. I wonder if they ever play, carefree and happy like your own little ones?

If those women who spend so much on paints, powders, cold creams, pomades, and perfumes, etc., could be induced to put their faith in good old fashioned soap and water, and the cash in the Farm fund, the benefit would be mutual. If our children were reared less selfishly and taught to be interested in the money they now spend on candies, etc., (to the ruin of their teeth and the indulging of their indigestion,) for sweet charity, it would benefit society more ways than one.

If those ladies who spend $5.00, or more for a fancy waist, etc., all for in, as much more for flowers, etc., all for a few hours of personal enjoyment, if they could see more plainly beyond their own selfish desires, they would be more useful members of society.

I wonder how much the Saviors and disciples spent on perfumes, confections and cigars? We pretend to be followers of the meek and lowly Nazarene, but I'm afraid we've fallen so far behind that we've lost sight of the Saviors' example. We're still in the mire of apoplexy, and then turn a poor turn from the door who asks for a crust. We spend lavishly, to the verge of poor taste on our own little "whims," and groan when we see the destitute's chair at the mere thought of giving of our riches, (we seldom get beyond the thought.)

We are told that giving to the poor is lending to the Lord, but we all seem to be mighty suspicious of the Lord's honesty, who we seldom put to the test. You don't catch men these times obeying the scriptural injunction, let it be that two dress suits give to the poor man in overalls.

When our Government ceases to be a proud, glittering, with plans for the office holders "only this thing nothing more," then will our rulers find time to regulate and control these Homes and places of Refuge, and we the public, will no longer live in dread of being "amputated" from small amounts by the keen knife of charity.

"Of course there are always poor farms, liberally supplied with Paris green, but they don't seem to cover the ground, filling it to its very line." But there still remain a want, a big want, a crying want, a big want, a big want, that disgraces our alleged civilization, and if you have any curiosity as to what that want is, you can learn full particulars by writing to Good Will Farm, and they will tell you what they want, how much and all about it.

Brown-Tail Moth, Winter Nests.
For the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with the nests of the brown-tail moth I will add a brief description of the same.

The nests are constructed by the small caterpillars to serve as homes to protect them from the severity of our northern winters.

The eggs of the moth are laid about the last of July; these hatch into very small caterpillars during August.

These caterpillars are gregarious in their habits, feeding together on the leaves of their food plant. They are so small that it only requires a few leaves to satisfy their hunger, and these they only skeletonize. Enough silk is evolved in the process of feeding to firmly attach their bodies to the twigs, and construct small silken cells into which they crawl to pass the hibernating period.

These nests are generally situated on the outer tips of the new growth, and as they are firmly attached will remain all winter if not tested.

It is an easy matter to identify them as the silken attachment is plainly visible on examination and is generally seen at quite a distance owing to its white appearance.

It will thus be seen that the time for active and economic work against the pest is during the fall, winter and spring months while the trees are bare of their foliage.

One great mistake, however, will be in leaving the work until spring, as the caterpillars will crawl out during the first warm days of April to feed on the buds.

In conversing with some of the citizens of the different towns I find that the opinion with many is that nothing will be done until spring on account of funds, the excuse being that they must wait until after town meeting in March before money can be obtained to conduct a campaign against the pests. Now this is wholly wrong, for in body infested towns it would be practically impossible to get all of the nests after so late a date.

If necessary the contingent fund of the towns could be drawn upon for this purpose and made up at the annual meeting.

I cannot too strongly urge the absolute necessity of immediate action in the matter of the brown-tail moth. The pest is now at its height, and the earliest possible moment. E. F. HARRISON, State Entomologist.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh of the bladder, whether caused by a constitutional weakness, or by a local irritation, is a most distressing and painful condition. It is often the result of a constitutional weakness, and requires a constitutional treatment. Acting directly upon the blood, it cures the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution. Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

For Thin Babies
Fat is of great account to a baby; that is why babies are fat. If your baby is scrawny, Scott's Emulsion is what he wants. The healthy baby stores as fat what it does not need immediately for bone and muscle. Fat babies are happy; they do not cry; they are rich; their fat is laid up for time of need. They are happy because they are comfortable. The fat surrounds their little nerves and cushions them. When they are scrawny those nerves are hurt at every ungentle touch. They delight in Scott's Emulsion. It is as sweet as wholesome to them.

Norway Drug Store Guarantees Hyomel to Cure Catarrh or It Costs Nothing.

Editor of the ADVERTISER:—

In view of the prevalence of catarrhal troubles at this season of the year, we want to tell our readers that we have never sold anything that gave more satisfaction than Hyomel, when used in catarrhal troubles. You get immediate relief from the treatment, and consistent use will prove to every sufferer, as it has to many of our customers, the virtue of this preparation.

Personally we are interested in Hyomel, for it is made and sold on honor, and we do not want your money unless you are benefited and satisfied.

There is no stomach dosing in connection with Hyomel. It is a thoroughly local treatment for a local disease, and its soothing, healing medication goes direct to the spot where it is needed.

The complete Hyomel outfit consists of a pocket inhaler, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomel, and the price is only $1, while additional bottles can be obtained for 50 cents. We positively guarantee a cure when Hyomel is used in accordance with directions, or we will refund your money. This certainly shows our faith and belief in the virtues of Hyomel. Yours very truly,

ALBERT D. PARK, Register.

Written for the Advertiser. On the Way.

The sweet spring days are coming, Their promise to me, Is plainly written even now, On many things I see; White snow is on the hillside, And birds are in the air, I hear the robins' foot fall Of Springtime coming near. The days are growing longer, The sunbeams brighter, And aloft behind the western hills In softer tints of light, The shadows falling on the snow, Grow longer day by day, And whisper as they come, and go, "Spring is not far away."

When ice melts from the river, And warm spring days have come, The birds will journey northward To their happy summer home. The flowers are waiting, becoming, Till the snow flakes cease to fall, To rise to life and beauty At Springtime's gentle call. The haze across the woodland, The soft light in the sky, Are hints of rare days, coming in Springtime by and by. All through the morning hours, And sunny afternoon, I read the welcome promise, Of Springtime coming soon.

JULIA E. ABBOTT.

Mills at Andover.

Andover town records tell us that Oct. 25, 1815, Adams Royal was instantly killed by a blow from a stick of timber at the raising of Ezekiel Merrill's mill. This mill is at the upper end of the village on the west branch of the Ellis river. In latter years it has been known as Ripley's mill.

Some years after its erection it was sold to Silvanus & Elbridge Poor. It was at this time a saw and grist mill. A threshing machine was operated in connection with the other mills. Mr. Poor himself operated the saw mill. Here lived a man for the grist mill, William Marston, who operated the mill a great many years. The grist mill was at the east end of the saw mill. This starch mill was built by Mr. Woodard of Jefferson, N. H., in 1854. Mr. Woodard operated the mill for two years, then sold to Gove & Robie of Lancaster, N. H. They operated the mill two years, then sold to A. C. Dennison. J. W. Clarke & E. E. Bedell who came with Mr. Woodard then operated the mill from the time it was built until it was burned. Some years later, Dennison, Clarke & Bedell bought the saw and grist mill which they operated. The starch mill was operated 25 years. E. E. Bedell is the only one living of the original owners. While Elbridge Poor owned the mill, a crazy man came in the night. One day there was some obstruction which prevented the shutting of the gate. He chopped a hole in the ice in the flume, and after drawing water from flume went down to see what the matter was with the gate, lay down on the bottom of the flume to find obstruction, and while in that position the ice came down in a piece and broke his hip. He crawled up on a ladder to the top of the flume, down another ladder to a plank walk and along this plank to another ladder which led up into the mill. This was about 3 p. m. They sent to Rumford for a physician who arrived at 1 a. m.

All the mills with the exception of the starch mill were burned Aug. 3, 1882. That year J. L. Ripley bought the mill privilege and has since operated it until about 8 years ago when his son Lewis took charge and is now running it.

Mills at Andover Falls.

This mill at Andover was built by Col. John Adams. In 1840 this mill was purchased by Col. S. W. Gregg of Col. Adams. There were saw and clover mills, a clapboard and shingle machines. There was a block house made of logs. Mr. Sargent, a blacksmith, lived there for years. Mr. Gregg sold to Mr. Buffum of Salem, who rented it, Leslie Mason leased it to the Barnes Co., then to R. A. Grover. It was then sold to Jacob Thayer, who sold to Jacob Thayer, and is located on the Dresser and Melcher farm and is in operation.

The Crockett mill on west branch, near the Richard Norton farm, was built in 1854 by Lewis Crockett and operated by his son, Nathaniel Crockett. Geo. Akers at one time operated this mill which did a good business. It was afterward moved to East Andover.

There was a starch mill at South Andover built in 1898 on John Adams' land. The owners were John Gould, Elijah Bedell, Col. Dresser and John Adams. It was operated eight or ten years and prospered.

There are several mills on the Lake road. This road turns at the left and takes you to "Devil's Dam." At one time there was a mill called Smith's mill, then a saw mill.

R. A. Grover has a dam mill employing thirteen men which is doing good business.

R. E. D. System.

The growth of the rural free delivery system is shown by a statement just issued by the post-office department at Washington, giving the details of the amount of business handled on the 32,121 routes, which were in operation June 30, 1905, starting from 18,599 distributing points. From the reports of rural carriers, which have been compiled in the division of rural delivery, it is shown that more than one billion pieces of mail were handled by the carriers in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1905, or, to be more exact, 1,387,057,711.

The number of pieces of mail delivered and collected, of the various classes, the value of stamps cancelled, the value of stamps sold, and the number of money orders sold by rural carriers, is indicated in the following statement: Registered mail, pieces delivered and collected, 1,297,822; letters and postals, delivered and collected, 492,124,284; newspapers and periodicals, delivered and collected, 775,639,261; circulars, delivered and collected, 121,701,480; packages, 26,384,863; grand total, 1,387,057,711. Value of stamps cancelled, $3,421,837.01; value of stamps sold, $3,348,471.79; number of money orders sold, 8,979,620.

The average monthly salary of rural carriers in the service June 30, 1905, throughout the United States is $59.09, and deducting from this the average value of stamps cancelled on mail originating on rural routes, $10.84, the approximate average cost to a carrier on account of salary is $48.25.

A Maine Story.

"I was up in the northern part of Maine the other day and heard a story which was a little out of the ordinary line of civil war stories I have read about," said a New York drummer. "I had noticed a funeral in the town, the turnout of which indicated that the deceased must have been a prominent man in his lifetime. A citizen said in answer to my inquiry that the man had retired from business several years before his death. The citizen added: 'His funeral to-day is much larger than it would have been some years ago.'"

"I then heard the story. When Lincoln called for troops there were few men in the State of Maine who opposed overture of the South. This was an exception. Although a New Englander from a Colonial family whose history goes back to the Colonial wars, this man was, at the call for troops, what was known in the North as a copperhead. He was an officer in the militia at the time of Lincoln's proclamation. He not only refused to go out, but he boldly contended that it was an outrage to oppose the secession of the Southern States. He was a man who was both commercially and financially sound. His business dwindled away. During the second year of the war he left the community. Nobody seemed to care where he went.

"Two years later he returned. He was a physical wreck. He served in the community was not quite so bitter as in the beginning of the war. However, the man was not cordially received. He had not been back long when it was learned that he had been in the Confederate army and was discharged on account of his inability to do duty. This information did not tend to increase his popularity. He came into possession of considerable money soon after his return. "Meanwhile some of the shattered remnants of Maine companies began to drift home. Most of them were broken in health and some of them were penniless. This man began contributing to the relief of the needy. A majority of the beneficiaries did not know the source of their help. After the war was over it leaked out, little by little that the beneficiary was the man who had been ostracized. To the credit of many he was again admitted to fellowship and his business began to thrive. He became independent.

"A few years later he was elected to office on a Republican ticket. The nomination came to him unsought. Up to that time he had never affiliated with any party. He was elected on his term of office, but whenever there was a township or county election he voted the Democratic ticket. This was understood to be his right. It was never questioned.

"Before he retired from business he was on one occasion visited by a man from the South who had been the colonel of the Confederate regiment of which he was a member. The ex-Confederate was down at the heel in every way. No one knew what happened during his visit in Maine, but a few years ago it became known to a few people in the vicinity that the Maine man helped his old commander to recover his fortune. That man until 1901 was a successful broker and banker in New York and his partner for nearly 15 years was the Maine Yankee who as a Democrat held a Republican office. I have traveled over the United States, and met all sorts of people but I have never heard a civil war story that was anything like this."

Maine Sanatorium

The Maine Sanatorium at Hebron have placed two large boilers of 100 horse power each, in its new lighting and heating plant. These boilers will connect with the existing steam generator plant, where 800 lights may be made. They will also furnish motive power for one of the most modern steam laundry plants situated under the same roof.

The cottages will be heated by direct radiation from this plant, as well as the administration building, the latter being heated by both direct and indirect radiation. The necessary hot water and power for creamery will be supplied by the same plant. The pumping for the water supply will be done by electric pumps furnished with current from the generator.

The power house has been made large enough for the installation of another boiler of 150 horse-power in the boiler room and engine and generator in the engine room.

The Gentle Reader.

The young girl, forbidden the saloon and cafe, muddles her brains with books instead of with drink. From the twenty to fifty new novels a year that she reads it is doubtful if she obtains a single new idea, a single thought worth remembering. She reads not to think but to save herself the trouble of thinking. The book that could give her any real knowledge of life would not perhaps be found on shelves of the circulating library. She reads, one after the other, a monotonous procession of love stories, where impossible young men with nothing else to do in life, make impossible love to impossibly perfect young women. I talked with a successful novelist once. He can be delightfully cynical, even at his own expense.

"The recipe for a successful novel," he explained, "is to draw your heroine so that every woman reader can imagine herself the part. Sketch your hero a vague framework into which she can put the picture of her particular young man. Let them make love on every other page and she feels it almost as good as the real thing."

There's the Rub.

Supernatural seems to be the part of the mental composition of every one, and it commonly centers to a rooted antipathy to the number thirteen. The first of the teens has had sterner for many, an action that was ridiculous, and yet there is hardly any person who would side-step an inch or mournfully rail at fate should he spy a silver quarter dollar on the sidewalk. In fact he would only be too eager to place it gently in his pocket.

Have you ever taken the trouble to scan closely this small piece of silver? If you have not, you may be surprised to find on the eagle side that there are 13 arrows in the bundle which is clutched in the left claw, 13 stars leave in the branch in the other claw, 13 stars at his head, 13 letters in the Latin inscription "E PLURIBUS UNUM," 13 letters in the words "Quarter dollar," 13 stripes on the shield, and on the front of the silver piece are 13 stars surrounding the Liberty head, and 13 leaves in Liberty's crown. This array of 13 is in commemoration of the original thirteen states which comprised the Union.

Fryeburg Academy.

Several of our students have been out of school this term with either the measles or the chicken pox. At present most of them have returned. Miss Chauncey, who has had quite a severe attack of bronchitis and has been confined to her room for about two weeks, is now rapidly recovering, and we hope to see her in school again soon.

Our Business Course has been established three years and as a result we now have several students who will complete the course at the end of this school year. Their work has been of the same quality and of greater extent than that given ordinarily at the business colleges. We are therefore able to offer to the public well-trained stenographers, typewriters, and bookkeepers. As our school offers a much broader course of study than the business colleges and trains its students in the elements of a liberal education as well as in the so called business facilities, we do not hesitate to say that the students whom we recommend will compete favorably with those of any business college.

Miss Cannon, who is a strong candidate in the Globe voting contest, now stands ninth. We hope by the end of the week to see her leap ahead one or two more places.

HARBOR.

W. L. Howe was in Norway, last week. Evie Hall had a birthday party Tuesday night.

Ennice Maxwell spent last week with Mrs. Jennie Hurd.

Margery Pray was at home from Fryeburg academy, over Sunday.

Walter Benson is at home waiting for snow to finish his logging job in Sweden.

Elmer Knight went to Cold river, Thursday, to see his aunt who is sick.

Sunday, the 21st, Presiding Elder Parsons preached here and held the quarterly conference.

Mrs. Percy Jones and little son, spent last week with her father and sister, Wesley Heald and daughter.

Mrs. Norman Charles, of Fryeburg village, is visiting her sister Mrs. Abbie Waterhouse. Mrs. Lillian Waterhouse, of North Conway, visited relatives and friends here last week.

WEST LOVELL.

Mrs. Hattie C. Fox of Nashua, N. H., was in the place, Wednesday, to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Roscoe LeBaron.

Mrs. Mary Harriman of Groveton, N. H., is assisting his wife in the care of her aunt, Pamela McDaniels, and with her housework.

Rev. J. W. Card and wife of Lovell Center visited at A. K. Lord's, Saturday. Mrs. Lord has been with her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Hiram, at J. H. Fox's at Mill Brook, the past week.

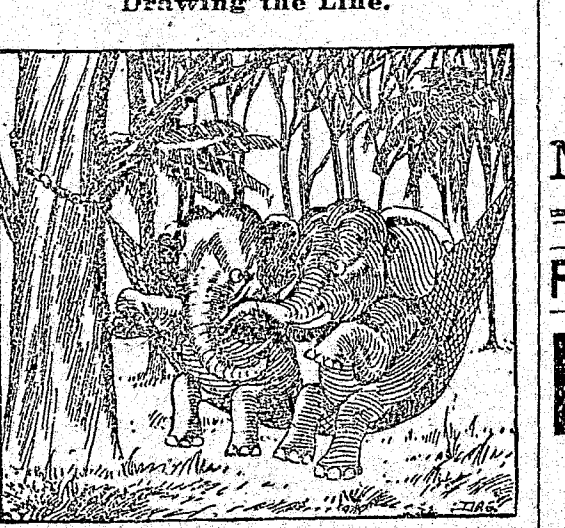

The West Lovell people met the president and directors of the Citizens' Telephone Co. at the Library hall, Thursday afternoon, to ascertain on what terms they could use each others lines in case the West Lovell people had a line. As no decision could be made satisfactory to both parties they will have another meeting Jan. 21st. The West Lovell people immediately began to get poles for a line and will probably build in the spring.

Mrs. Mary Culbert was one of the charter members of Kezar Lake Grange, North Lovell, when organized a year ago last September, and is the first to leave its membership by death. Hers is also the first break in the family of ten children. By her request she was buried under the auspices of the Grange and between fifty and sixty attended the funeral. Noticeable among the flowers was a wreath with P. of H. from said Grange, which was lovingly contributed.

Maine's Living Ex-Governors.

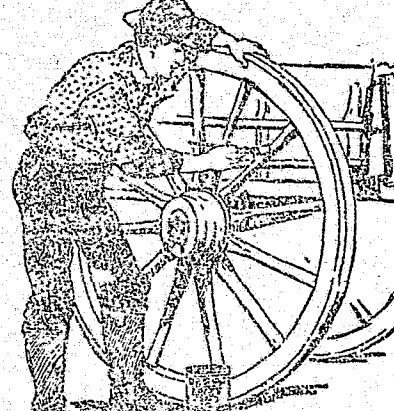

The number of living ex-Governors in Maine is nine. Hon. Alonzo Garcelon, M. D., of Lewiston, who was governor in 1879, was born May 6, 1813, making him 92 years and eight months old. Next to Gov. Garcelon is Hon. Sidney Perkins. He was in office in 1871-2-3, and is now 86 years and nine months of age. Hon. Frederick Robie of Gorham, who was governor in 1833-4-5-6, is 83 years and five months old. Gen. Joshua A. Hodgdon, who held the office, was governor in 1872-3-4-5, is 77 years and four months old. Cleaves, 65 years, who served during the years 1898-4-5-6; Cong. Llewellyn Powers, 66 years, who served during the years 1897-8-9-1900; John E. Hill, 50 years, who served during the years 1901-2-3-4.

BRYANT'S POND.

Capt. J. F. Dearborn.

The community was shocked by the news of Capt. J. F. Dearborn's death on Monday morning. Capt. Dearborn had been sick for a long time, but it was sudden at the last. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon, at the Universalist church. He was 71 years, 10 months 2 days old.

Capt. Dearborn was one of the leading business men of this town. He was a captain in the U. S. navy during the Civil war, and went to Lock's Mills from Portsmouth, N. H., where he established a spool mill. In 1879 the mill was burned and the same year the citizens of this place built him a mill on condition of his moving here. THE RED MASK.

There are many reasons, few diseases more to be dreaded than erysipelas, and it has, not infrequently, been termed "St. Anthony's Fire." The disease is characterized by a red, inflamed, and swollen skin, which is often accompanied by a high fever and a general prostration of the system. The disease is caused by a specific microbe, and it is highly contagious. It is most common in the face, neck, and limbs, and it can be fatal if not treated promptly.

Thrown by a Mocking Demon over the human face, it is almost as dangerous as the plague. It is a disease which is often accompanied by a high fever and a general prostration of the system. The disease is caused by a specific microbe, and it is highly contagious. It is most common in the face, neck, and limbs, and it can be fatal if not treated promptly.

The Best Modern Treatment is all contained in Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Use this, and you have taken the essential total of all the best physicians in the land could prescribe for Erysipelas. Mr. S. B. Carpenter, of Grandville, N. Y., was for some time afflicted with this disease in both legs. He regained his health by the use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Dr. D. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is also used in its action in all other blood diseases. The human system is like a machine. If one part is out of order, the whole goes wrong. The blood is the main spring. Keep this all right and you will not suffer from kidney and liver disorders, Piles and Constipation. Among all forms of treatment for these troubles.

None Has Ever Approached the efficacy of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, which promotes an easy and natural action of the digestive organs, eliminates all poisons from the system through the natural channels, stimulates the secretions and is always safe and pleasant for the most delicate constitutions. It acts directly upon the digestive processes, and enables nature to throw off all poisonous influences, no matter how advanced the disease.

The Walker of the Snow.

"Speed on, speed on, good master; The camp lies far away; We must cross the haunted valley Before the close of day."

"How the snow blight comes upon me I will tell you as we go, The blight of the midnight snow. Who walks the midnight snow. Save the wailing of the Moos-bird; With a plaintive note and low; And the skittering of the red feet Upon the frozen snow."

"And I said—'Though dark is falling And far the camp must be Yet my heart would be light as air If I had but company.'"

"And then I sang and shouted, Keeping measure as I sped To the harp-swing of the snow-shoe As it sprang beneath my tread."

"Nor far into the valley And I dipped upon my way, When a dusky figure joined me In a capucine of gray."

"Holding upon the snow-shoes And with a long and timber stride; And I halted the dusky stranger, With a long and timber stride."

"But no token of communion Gave he by word or look, And a bear-chill fell upon me At the crossing of the brook."

"For I saw by the sickly moonlight As I followed, bending low, That the walking of the stranger Left no foot-marks in the snow."

"Then the bear-chill gathered o'er me, Like a shroud around my head, As I sank upon the snow drift, Where the shadow hunter passed."

"And the other trappers found me, Before the break of day, With my dark hair bleached and whitened As in the snow lay."

"But they spoke not as they raised me, For they knew that in the night I had seen the shadow hunter, And had withered in his sight."

"Santa Maria speed us! The sun is false low; Before us lies the valley Of the Walker of the snow."

The Maine Black Bear.

Indian Legend Explains How He Became a Quadraped.

Occasionally while tramping the Maine woods in search of deer or moose the hunter comes upon another animal, the sight of which makes the sportsman's heart beat faster than did even the sight of antlered game, and causes him to bring his rifle into speedy action.

More often it is the farmer living in an isolated section who comes upon the brute, the Maine black bear, as the fellow makes off with one of his lambs.

In either case, be it sportsman or farmer who sees the bear, the view he gets of the animal, for this big brute with all his strength and formidable teeth and claws is no fighter and prefers running to fighting on almost all occasions.

Black bears are found in Maine in such numbers that they may almost be said to be numerous. They are found in every county in the State with the exception of the most southerly counties west of Penobscot bay, but are of course most numerous where the deer and moose are found in greatest numbers in northern Hancock, Washington, Penobscot, Franklin and Somerset counties and the vast region embraced by Piscataquis and Aroostook counties.

Years ago black bears were very numerous in the sections named, but advances of civilization has made far greater inroads on the numbers of the bears than on the deer and moose. The animals were hunted for their fur and for the bounty placed upon them by the State legislature. The bears had no friends. They were killed at any and every time of year, for even in the summer months when their fur was of no value the bounty made hunting them worth while. This indiscriminate slaughter of course speedily thinned out the ranks of brutes. A few years ago the bounty of $5 was removed, and since then the hunters have lost most of their fervor. Bears are killed now wherever they are found by the ordinary hunter, but the men who made a business of trapping and hunting them have gone out of business except for a few months in the year when the fur is in prime condition.

There is an old Indian legend which gives an interesting explanation of how the black bear came to walk upon all fours. According to the legend the Great Manitou, the good spirit of all the Indians, dwelt high up on Mt. Katahdin. The Manitou had a beautiful daughter, a girl as wild and fleet of foot as he roamed through the forest this maiden met a young brave with whom she fell in love and promised to wed. When the subject of her betrothal was broached to the maiden's father the fiery old Manitou flew into a rage. He swore his daughter should marry nobody but a son of Mars, the god of war, and forbade his daughter speaking to the young brave again. Love in those days was, however, evidently as fiery as in the garden of Eden and the Indian maiden stole from her father's wigwam among the clouds and met her lover by stealth. The pair took a huge black bear, the king of all the bears in that region, in their confidence and telling him the Manitou's decree, would be sure to punish him if he did not aid the daughter of the Great Spirit, swore the bear to secrecy and bade him conceal them in a great cave.

While the Indian maiden and her lover were concealed in the cave a great storm arose. The lightning played about the top of the mountain and the trees were torn from their roots and dashed down its sides. One great bolt of lightning struck the ledge over the entrance of the cave and the rock split asunder. The entrance of the cave was closed tight by the falling masses of rock and the daughter of the Great Manitou perished. When the storm was at its height the Great Manitou missed his daughter from her wigwam and amid the pelting rain and flashing lightning made his way down the mountainside in quest of his lost child. The rage and grief of the Manitou were so great that the inhabitants of the woods were moved to tears and shivered lest the Great Spirit should suspect them of complicity in the disappearance of his daughter and visit some terrible punishment upon them.

The great bear, who had connived in the elopement of the young people, was the most frightened of all the wild creatures and thinking the Manitou might forgive him if he told him where his daughter had gone, the bear confessed all. The Manitou made the bear lead him to the cave where the young people had hidden and when he came to the ledge the storm had wrought the rage and grief of the Great Manitou knew no bounds. He seized the huge rocks with his naked hands and dashed them down the side of the mountain, until they dashed into the cave and found his daughter clasped in the arms of her Indian lover; a smile of contentment on the faces of both, for the brave had killed his sweetheart and then himself.

The Great Manitou was moved to kill the bear, but the great bear pleaded, so hard for his life that even the great spirit was moved. The bear was all fours at the feet of the great spirit while making his plea for life and the Great Manitou, looking down upon the man in that position until he should return and bid them rise. Then the Manitou ran up the side of the mountain with the bodies of his daughter and her lover still clasped together in his arms and disappeared among the clouds. He never more appeared below the top of the mountain and ever since that time all bears have walked on all fours.

A Good Bear Story Told By An Old Pioneer of Oxford County.

The best bear story of Oxford county, is that which has been told by Alonzo Heath, of Greenwood, better known as "Grandfather's" Heath.

Says Mr. Heath: "Never told you the bear story? No? I saw that's bad! Hitch th' old split-bottom up nigh to the stove an' I um I will!"

"Remember him? Why tarntation if I didn't I've got these scars on my arm to 'rive up th' memory of that scimmage. We was livin' on 't'her side o' Wild River, an' I'm 'telling you the upper section o' Maine was a pretty big wilderness in those days."

"Recon I was a little fellow—not morn' knee high—kind o' a sprightly boy for my age. 'Twas one o' them spring-summer days. Days when birds a-singin', when you can see the grass a-growin', smell the flowers an' hear the bees a-buzzin'. One o' the days that makes the school seats seem harder, makes the chalk dust choky, makes a feller want to rip the stuffin' out o' the rickety setee an' get right into th' sunshine."

"Probly I'd skipped school that day, anyhow, that's what a boy will do—for I don't see no other way for me to be a sittin' under the hemlocks by th' river, a-watchin' the kingbird chasin' the robin, an' a-listenin' to th' ripplin' o' th' river a-bobbin' my stopper-doot under the shady bank afore the wary speckled beauties a-sunnin' themselves there."

"Remember I twisted my leg 'round the alder pole I keep it over th' water, and with my free hands was a-whittlin' a hemlock limb into some dev'lopy, when I sees the breaks and ferns a-way-in' further up the bank. I was a-squirrel or a rabbit maybe, that was a-friskin' 'round the trees there, and I hove my club into the bushes. Zip! Crash, Bang! Law sakes, I was a mile beheld for awersness."

"Quicker'n you can say scat, that b'ar was on me. Yes, it was a b'ar! And a t'arnal big 'un too. Swish! she pounced on me, snarl'n' an' growl'n'. I could feel her hot breath, and then just one swoop o' her paw tore half my shirt away, and clean through to my skin. Rag and tatters! You never saw the like. My arm was a-bleedin' and the b'ar was just getting her paws around me for another hug."

"I happened to realize I had my knife in my hand and I just stabbed the good an' hard. Tore a gash long's th' blade in her shoulder, and now I tell you there was scatchin' and a-scrabblin' an' a twinkle the b'ar was on th' ground all ready for another grab."

"I didn't wait for her, and mind you all this was a-happenin' in a pretty short space o' time, and when the b'ar struck the ground I was on my feet and a-scratchin' for home."

"Bare-foot o' course. Old b'ar give me a t'arnal scratch across my legs that sent me sprawlin' into th' bushes, but I was up ag'in and runnin' for dear life."

"Th' main road followed Wild river pretty near to the settlement, and that b'ar followed right along the bushes side of the path all the way home. A-patin' and covered with blood from head 't' foot I dropped into the kitchen door frightenin' the wits nigh out o' the women. All the men was workin' in the woods, and by the time they was home the b'ar had disappeared."

"Some o' the neighbors went out 't' main road and got a trap and set it by the river, and in three days the b'ar skin was strapp'd to the mother of the two cubs followed the mother to the trap, and father took the cub's little feller by the napes o' their necks and fetched 'em home to me."

"Skippin' school? No, there wa'n't a word said 'bout it. Father give the cubs to me, and I kept 'em summer. Used to feed 'em on milk and let 'em sleep in the barn. They was curs's little fellows, always a-gettin' into mischief, burrowin' in th' hay or upsettin' things in the creamery."

"Remember, there wa'n't no snow till 'bout Christmas, then there came a blidin' Gale that made the timbers an' cross-beams creek with frost. One day we missed the cubs from the barn, and when we followed the winding tracks down across the garden to the maple orchard there was a round hole where they'd burrowed into th' snow, accordin' to their nature to den up. There they'd retired asleep—a long sleep and no returnin' time could waken them."—Times.

Gentle Hints.

The shortest month of the year is a lot that is left of winter. But February is often as strenuous as any is brief.

Five thousand invitations have been sent out to the wedding of Congressman Longworth and Princess Alice at the White House. But of course some of us who have received invites will be unable to attend.

The chief of the weather bureau explains that the reason it has been so warm lately was because we have been having a hot spell. This appears to be a plausible explanation, and certainly science is a great thing.

Harvard college isn't going to play football with the other college teams any more until the rules of the game are changed so as to reduce its roughness to a safe and healthy level. It is quality, not quantity that counts in the grey matter. The London specialist, however, while proving that women are not mentally inferior to men, admits that they are dissimilar, which is something most of us had noticed some time ago.

A Massachusetts statesman has introduced a bill in the legislature providing that every automobile and motor cycle shall be equipped with a gong or bell which shall strike or sound at every revolution of the wheels similar to the gong on fire apparatus. If this bill should become a law and the clang of the gong be added to the chug-chug and roar of the buzz-aw, we reckon the chicken would squawk and fly, the dogs would bark, and everybody take to the woods when one of the machines came along our country highways.

Checker Match at West Paris

Quite a good deal of interest was shown by checker enthusiasts at a match played at West Paris, on January 16, when Nelson Perham, of South Woodstock, and D. E. Hayes, of Bryant's Pond, met in a friendly contest. By mutual agreement the games were played according to the standard laws governing such matches with the exception that two, instead of five minutes were allowed in which to move.

Four games were to be played in order that each should have an equal chance, each having "black" twice. As an even break was secured in the four games, it was necessary to play two more before the victor could be decided upon. Play began about seven p. m., and opened with "Old Fourteenth." Neither player ventured for the beaten path of play. Each waiting for the other to vary from the established lines and the first game was drawn.

The second game was the "Cross" opening and resulted in a win for Perham. Again the "Old Fourteenth" was played and neither player could secure any advantage. The fourth game was "Scout" opening, and proved to be an easy one for Hayes. One each and two drawn. After a rest of half an hour, play was resumed, and the two games played were both won by Perham leaving the final score Perham 3, Hayes 1, drawn 2.

The games proved to be much more interesting than the score would indicate being very closely contested. Some very clever plays were made by both players, and the games were watched by a number of prominent players from both towns with great interest. There is a match being arranged between players from Mechanic Falls and Woodstock, to be played in the near future, and a very interesting contest is looked forward to.
